Fiat's appeal to Shanghai motorists comes not alone from it's low operating costs. The baby Fiat "500" model, with steel top or convertible sunshine top, is the handiest car in congested traffic and the easiest to park.

Finland :
A German's Sympathy

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I consider it my duty as a German to express in public at this particular moment my deep sympathy and admiration for the Finnish people, and I am definitely convinced that the great majority of Germans at home and abroad will share this view. All Germans who ever had the opportunity to visit Finland will never forget the kindness and friendliness of the population in regard to Germany and all matters German, a fact largely due to German participation in the liberation of Finland from the Bolshevik terror in 1918. If our country ever had a friend in the world, then this friend was Finland.

It is an hour of deep humiliation and disgust for every decent-minded German, an hour in which one realizes that the present regime in Germany has not the slightest right to call itself the keeper of the traditions of the 1st and 2nd Reich. And one is grateful at last for the decision of the 1935 Reichstag to abolish the old and ever-glorious colours, Black-White and Red, in favour of the Nazi-Party flag.

The deal concluded at Moscow on August 23, 1939, was a dirty one, and neither honour nor profit will come out of it for the German nation.

GERMAN NATIONALIST.

Shanghai, Dec. 1.

The Buses :
The Plea for Cooperation

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—There is something very touching in the Bus Co.'s plea this morning for cooperation by passengers to make the conductor's task easier in the matter of small change. It is not so long ago since I collected together a number of tram tickets and Sun Co. coupons that had been presented to me by conductors in change, and tried to pay my fare with them. The conductor refused to take them, although they had all been received from conductors, and although I told him I had nothing else but a $5 note, he preferred that. It took me from Edinburgh Road to the Country Club before I got my change—and then I had to ask for it. I have refused tram tickets and Sun Co. coupons for some time, because they are always refused when I try to pay them back again—and I always have a certain amount of argument whenever a conductor tries to hand them to me.

Perhaps it will comfort the Bus Co. to know that yesterday they got a bonus of one cent from me—change that I felt above demanding from the conductor.

PITIFUL.

Shanghai, Dec. 1,

The French Buses :
Overcrowding Alleged

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—One of the most unedifying sights to be met with, daily, along the main streets of the French Concession, is the hyper-crowded state of the omnibuses, crammed as they are to an extent that defies description.

Men, women and children are huddled against each other with little if any moving space and this glaring breach of the municipal regulations is allowed to go on indefinitely without so much as a remonstrance from headquarters.

At times one cannot even make one's way from a seat to the exit, without jostling or rubbing against passengers of the dirtiest or even infected class and it is not unusual to have to wait and go beyond one's destination in order to get out. Is it so difficult after all to keep the door closed when a bus is full or affix the sign "Bus Full" so that passengers may not attempt to board a bus au grand complet. And if the Cie des Tramways et d'Eclairage Electriques de Shanghai will not obey, can proceedings not be instituted against the offenders in the competent court? Is the law not enforceable in respect of such appalling breaches of existing regulations by the monopoly-holders?

The Last Word

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I am sorry my letter was like a red rag to the bull ANTIBOSH, but as we are here it seems there is nothing we can say, or do—and in spite of all that we say or do, we are just the products of evolution. So, ANTIBOSH, it is better to go forward than backward.

SIR,—I have been asked by a friend in England to get him some Chinese stamps. Not being a collector I am at a loss to know where to get these, and I wonder if one of your readers could help me in the matter.

Britain's Liberty Under War Conditions
Modification in Defence Regulations

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 30.

Important modifications of defence regulations, resulting from recommendations by an informal all-party Parliamentary committee, which were made known yesterday, illustrate the extent of liberty in Great Britain under war conditions, political quarters here declare.

These modifications, it is pointed out, serve to reveal the system by which changes are being brought about in the medium of Parliament, and provide specific examples of the British conception of that freedom which, in the Prime Minister's words, "we entered the war to defend."—Reuter.

U.S. to Take Action Against Spies

He said the United States would move against those who had violated laws, including the failure to register, falsification of passports, and similar statutes designed to control the action of foreign agents.—United Press.

Recs Meet A.S.F. Today in Skottowe Cup Competition

Rowing Club to Tackle A.S.F. Also at Race Course; Bright Football Programme

FEATURING this week-end's programme of football games are the various Cup matches postponed from last Saturday owing to the closure of the sports grounds. There will be three Skottowe Cup fixtures, one Reserve Cup and three Junior Cup encounters. This afternoon the Recs will meet A.S.F. while S.F.X. play the Rowing Club at the Race Course. While the speed of the Saints is expected to overcome the Oarsmen the contest between the Recs and the Frenchmen ought to see some close and interesting play. The Recs are more well-balanced and adopt short passing tactics. Their recent fine showing against the Surreys will certainly give the team a great deal of confidence.

The French team possess a much better goalkeeper and also a more thrustful centre-forward in the persons of Boissezon and Roboostoff.

Tomorrow morning Clube Lusitano will clash with the Jewish Recreation Club at the Canidrome. The Portuguese are slightly favoured to win because of the experience they have had in Cup competition, being the winners of the International Competition. Taking the records made by the Jewish eleven in the Second Division into consideration, there is even a chance of an upset.

The two army teams, the Surreys and the Seaforths, will make their League appearances. The Londoners are to tackle Tung Hwa this afternoon at the Canidrome.

Surreys:—Groombirdge, Bird, Harrison, Paget, Jelly, Austin, Parr, McClarty, Kinsella, Roberts, Dennis.

White Parade Will Race Don Enrico

Item of Chief Interest in Today's Meeting; Each Must Carry Seven Pounds

By "CHING"

The Shanghai Race Club are holding their 14th Extra Race Meeting today with the first saddling bell at 1.15 p.m.

The afternoon's programme consists of seven handicaps and one seller, entries for all eight races are good and some interesting racing, on a fairly fast track, can confidently be looked for. The opening race is confined to novice riders. Though Josspray—who will have T. F. Woo in the saddle, has disappointed more often than not, I think he has a prospect of lasting out the 7 furlongs and keeping ahead of the field until the winning post is reached and past.

The second race is the E class of the handicap and here two ponies that placed in their races last Saturday appear as likely to do a bit better today. They are National Union and Vigour and this may be how the race will finish, unless Beautylight starts here in preference to the Seller. He should win whichever race he enters.

National Sport Picked

The D class of the handicap follows, and here National Sport with his 3 lb. allowance may finish first, with Lord Lister and Crispylight placing. The C class of the handicap is the 4th race and appeals as a very open event, with Colorado Kid, Don Victor, Fairy Starling, Haiphong, Magenta, and Port St. Mary, all having equal chances of winning. However I must take as my choice Fairy Starling, who may be followed closely by Don Victor. The B class of the handicap has amongst the 22 entered Thursday's winner of the Ewo Handicap, as well as Libertylight, Doc, Mr. Bubbins, Wet Morn, Black Pirate, Danbury and other likely ones. Libertylight put up a fast mile on Wednesday though he did not finish well; still, the distance of this race suits him. However in standing on Mr. Bubbins to win, I think I have a better chance of having picked correctly.

The A class of the handicap may go to Rye, though in Cherrylight, Corps Cavalry and Merry Jester, he has strong opposition.

Mount Ebal Handicap

The important race of the afternoon is at 9 furlongs and should bring out a representative field of good ponies, including White Parade, Don Enrico, Rain, Vim, Newcastle, Cluniеburn, Busted Straight, Flyinglight and Slow Motion. White Parade and Don Enrico top the handicap each with 7 lb. up and it will be interesting to see them meet at these weights. I am not sure that either can carry the 7 lb. extra and win against some that will be out against them at considerably lighter weights. However I am going to stand by Don Enrico to win, and I think he will be followed by Vim and Cluniеburn. The final race of the afternoon is the seller at ¾ mile and a big field may be seen to weigh out. If Beautylight starts he should win, the next best being Sky Raider or Cherrybey.

Little Filipino Beats Frankie Kovacs

Puncec Wins Easily During Matches at Manila

Manila, Nov. 30.

Tiny Felicismo Ampon, Filipino Davis Cup star, surprised the critics today by beating Frankie Kovacs, youthful Californian and ranking U.S. player, in three straight sets at the Rizal Memorial Stadium today.

Amado Sanchez, No. 1 Filipino player, however, lost the other exhibition tennis match to Franjo Puncec, Yugoslavia's leading player in a one-sided match.

Ampon's Remarkable Energy

Coming up to Kovacs' shoulder, Ampon revealed remarkable energy and force to win, 10-8, 6-3, 6-3. His well-placed lobs and placements wore out Kovacs, who was forced to run after the shots in the first set. Kovacs never recovered after the initial set and went down to defeat without being able to stage a rally.

Puncec had an easy time trouncing Sanchez, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. The Yugoslav star had the upper hand throughout and did not give his opponent a chance.—United Press.

Plans for Squash Rackets

Season to Open December 5; Race Club Expected To Have Strongest Team; Prospects

THE Shanghai Squash Rackets League will start this season's play on Tuesday, December 5 when all four teams in the first division meet and on Thursday, December 7 six out of the seven teams in the second division make their initial bow to the public. As there are only four teams in the first division, two rounds will be played in this competition, and the league will be completed by January 23, whereas there are seven teams in the second league and only one round will be played in that category, that contest being completed by January 25.

At the conclusion of the league, if time permits, other contests may be arranged prior to the starting of the senior and junior championships which are to commence towards the middle of February. Last year it was thought a knockout competition might have been held after the league was completed and before the championships were held, but lack of time prevented that, whereas it is hoped this year, by making an early start, a full season's play including other competitions will be possible.

The teams entered in the two leagues are:

First Division:—Race Club, Foreign Y.M.C.A., Rowing Club, Oarsmen.
Second Division:—Race Club "B," Foreign Y.M.C.A. "B," Rowing Club "B," Hongkong & Shanghai Bank, Light Horse, Columbia Country Club, and British Army.

Balls from Hongkong

Matches will be played on the courts of the Race Club, Foreign Y.M.C.A., Rowing Club and Columbia Country Club. It has been possible to obtain a small supply of Gradidge balls from Hongkong and some have been secured already, others being on order and it is hoped these will be available by early next week in time for the first matches in the league.

At a recent meeting of the Squash Rackets Association committee, it was decided to adhere as much as possible to the use of the Gradidge ball for league and championship play, as this type of ball had proved the most satisfactory in the past and players here were better used to it.

If the supply of Gradidge balls fails to allow all matches to be played, the Silvertown is given second preference and failing a supply of that type of ball, the Dunlop ball will be used. Players in the leagues and championships are particularly asked to wear white for their matches, black shorts or shirts placing an opponent at a disadvantage.

Begins Next Week

The leagues will open next week, and on Tuesday, December 5, the Rowing Club will meet the Race Club on the former's courts, while the Foreign Y.M.C.A. will entertain the Oarsmen at the Y.M.C.A. courts. Both matches are scheduled to start as soon after 5 p.m. as conveniently arranged by the team captains.

The second division will start on Thursday, December 7, when the Hongkong & Shanghai Bank team play the Race Club "B" at the Race Club, the Foreign Y.M.C.A. "B" team meeting the Army at the Foreign Y.M.C.A., the Clumbia Country Club entertaining the Light Horse on their courts. Matches in the first division will be played on Thursday, and the junior division matches will take place on Thursdays.

Prospects for the season point to the Race Club again proving the strongest side in the first division, although both the Rowing Club teams will give them a hard tussle for the championship position. The Race Club are holders of the title which they won after the Rowing Club had given them a hard fight for the league last year. This season will see practically the same team playing for the Race Club, L. H. Wade, J. Pote-Hunt, E. B. Cumine, M. Benavitch all being available, and it is understood W. Welch is in town and if he should make up the side they will be very strong. Their chief strength lies in all five members being practically equally good players, and the lower graded members of the team can be assured of winning points.

Oarsmen

The Rowing Club will turn out practically the same team as represented them last year, only S. Godkin being an absentee as he is out of town now. W. Neugebauer, C. W. Morris, H. G. Fabian, A. C. Sinclair and C. S. Kimber make up the side, while the Oarsmen will be represented by L. D. Carson, R. B. Gotch, H. M. Snow, W. M. Portitude, and either T. O. Schmid or R. S. L. Frewin. On paper the Oarsmen are distinctly strong and may carry off the league particularly as their leading two players are of a first string class and even if they alternate as number one player for the side, it seems highly probable they will be worth a point on each appearance.

The Foreign Y.M.C.A. did not make a very impressive showing against the Rowing Club in their friendly match the other night, but several of their best players were not out, and with these included they will make a better showing. D. Green played well, and T. E. Baker, last year's junior champion lost to W. Neugebauer, but put up a good match. Among those expected to play will be J. Forbes, M. Ginsbourg and M. Beckerman, all of whom were not playing on Wednesday.

The second league will provide some interesting play. The Army team will be strong with Capt. J. R. Cole and Capt. Powell as leading players. Both are first class players, and while the lower graded players may not do as well, these two are good for a point each. The Hongkong Bank team will be weakened by the loss of W. H. Lydall and A. M. Kennedy, but will have W. R. McCutcheon as No. 1 and he is considered equal to senior standard.

Light Horse

The Light Horse, led by H. Maitland and A. A. White, are strong having J. G. Lewis, W. E. Grieve and G. F. H. Bichard playing for them. They are well-balanced and may possibly prove the best allround side. The Foreign Y.M.C.A. "B", will lose their stars of last year who won the second league title for them as these will be promoted to their first.

The Race Club "B" include, G. Talbot, A. V. Striker, G. Mary, J. S. Flood, and several other experienced players and will be well in the running, while the Rowing Club, losing their more experienced players to the senior teams, have a fairly good side including younger players such as R. Stapleton-Cotton, D. J. Poyd with A. B. Wilkinson and G. W. Jenssen who played on the team last year. The Columbia Country Club will turn out a team including their players of last year, with Randall Gould, F. R. Nance and others.

Senator Pittman Criticized

Japanese Spokesman Says His Stand on Blockade Shows Inconsistency

Tokyo, Dec. 1.

Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was charged with "inconsistency" by Mr. Yakichiro Suma, spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Office, today.

Criticizing the statement of Senator Pittman which declared that the United States would accept the decision of the British and French to blockade German exports without registering a protest, Mr. Suma asserted that this contention was "tantamount to the abnegation of the principle of freedom of the seas."

"The United States zealously advocated this principle during the World War and it is difficult to understand such an attitude when this same principle is threatened again," he declared.

"If the United States condones these measures, then why," he asked, "is she going to impose an embargo upon her exports to Japan, as advocated by Senator Pittman as a retaliatory measure against the unavoidable losses caused her by Japan in the course of the establishment of a new order in East Asia?"

Common Stand Discussed

The spokesman also announced that Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese Foreign Minister, conferred with Sig. Giacinto Auriti, Italian Ambassador to Japan, and Mr. Pierre Forthomme, Belgium Ambassador to Japan, yesterday. They discussed the stands their respective governments would take on the proposed British seizure of German goods. He refused, however, to reveal whether the Italian and Belgian stands coincided with that planned by Japan.

The French Ambassador, Mr. Charles Arsene-Henri, visited the Japanese Foreign Office today, at the invitation of the Japanese Foreign Minister, the spokesman said. Admiral Nomura told the French Ambassador that Japan had filed a protest of the proposed seizure of German goods with the French Government.

During the interview, it was stated, Admiral Nomura pointed out that arms were still being transported through French Indo-China to Chinese territory. He asked that the French Ambassador transmit Japan's desire that the transportation be stopped.

Asked whether Japan would make similar representations to Great Britain and the Soviet Union to stop the transportation of arms through Burma over the so-called "Red Route," Mr. Suma said that the Government had not taken any action yet, although Japan authorities had drawn the Soviet's attention to the matter repeatedly.—Domei.

Japan-Siam Air Pact Signed

Regular Service to Be Inaugurated Shortly

Tokyo, Dec. 1.

An agreement for the inauguration of a regular air service between Japan and Thailand (Siam) was signed at Bangkok at 10 yesterday morning, said the Foreign Office spokesman at today's press conference.

The agreement, he added, was signed by Mr. Kuramatsu Murai, the Japanese Minister, and Major-General Luang Pradist Manudharm, the Foreign Minister of Thailand.

It had originally been arranged to sign the agreement on November 27, but owing to matters of procedure, it had to be postponed until November 30.

It is understood that, in accordance with the agreement, a regular air service between Japan and Thailand will be started in February.—Reuter.

Financial Parleys Postponed

Chinese Government Sends Officials to Hongkong to Confer with Bankers

Hongkong, Dec. 1.

Opening of a Nationalist financial conference in Hongkong has been postponed to December 5 owing to delay in reorganization of the Executive Yuan of the Chinese Government, according to reliable sources here.

More than 40 influential leaders of financial circles are to participate in the conference.

The Chungking Finance Ministry sent several high officials who are pushing preparations for opening the session. Representing the Chungking Government will be Mr. T. V. Soong, Mr. Hsu Kan and others.

Mr. Soong's projected journey to America was expected to be started after the adjournment of the parley.

Stabilization On Agenda

The main topic expected to be discussed was the stabilization of the Chinese dollar.

According to Chinese financial observers, different opinions exist between the Chungking Government on one hand and the Hongkong and Shanghai bankers on the other on measures that would attain stabilization.

Chungking financial authorities were expected to attempt to induce Hongkong and Shanghai Bankers closely to collaborate with the Government's efforts to keep the Chinese currency up, it was understood. The Government financial authorities were reported to be anticipating a collapse of the Chinese dollar in view of the growing difficulties of the Government to obtain foreign support of the Chinese currency.

Meanwhile, bankers, especially those in Hongkong, placed the responsibility for the unstable financial condition on the Chungking Government, claiming that the Government issued excessive bank notes and charging that there had been financial manipulation in the making of money.

Manipulation Charged

They were expected to allege further that Chungking authorities gave an artificial boost of the dollar rate before selling large quantities of bank notes on the market and lowered the dollar rate before purchasing notes from the market, thus causing heavy losses on the part of the gfieneral public.

A five-point plan was expected to be proposed by the Honkong bankers to stabilize the dollar. Such a plan would demand:

1. Prohibition of Government manipulation on the money market.
2. Inspection of reserve legal currency.
3. Abandonment of the inflatory policy.
4. Stabilization of prices in interior provinces.
5. A guarantee to investments in the interior.

Chungking representatives were reported to be "embarrassed" by the proposal of the Hongkong bankers and efforts were reported to be under way to kill the proposed measures before the meeting.—Domei.

Court of Consuls Again Adjourns

Many Witnesses Testify For Both Sides

A number of witnesses for both sides gave evidence in yesterday afternoon's hearing resumed in the case in which Mr. Michael Storchilo, a former private in the Russian Regiment, S.V.C., represented by M. P. Premet, is the plaintiff and the Shanghai Municipal Council, represented by Mr. R. I. Bryan, Jr., is the defendant. Mr. E. A. Long, secretary of the Consular Corps, acted as commissioner, the three consular judges hearing the case not being present.

The plaintiff claims $5,839.20 as balance for indemnity to which, he claims, he is entitled as a result of injuries sustained by him when on duty at 2.30 a.m. on August 13, 1937, when he is alleged to have been riding a bicycle on the East Road of the Rifle Range thereby knocking against a telephone pole which had been uprooted during a typhoon a few days previously. The case was again adjourned as counsel for the defence desired to question a witness due back in Shanghai from home-leave on December 18.

Reich Claim Shown To Be Absurd

Command of North Sea, As Stated, Would Take More Than Fifteen Years

London, Dec. 1.

The absurdity of the boast made by Berlin newspapers that Germany was now master of the North Sea and the North Atlantic, was emphasized two days ago by Mr. William Simms, foreign editor of the powerful Scripps - Howard newspapers in America.

It would take the Reich more than 15 years, he declared, to sweep Allied and neutral shipping from the seas at the present rate of destruction. This figure, however, did not take into account Allied replacements.

"Germany is aware of this," he added, "hence her present desperate efforts. She will have to score many times her present average to turn the trick."

According to authoritative quarters, British merchant shipping has suffered losses as follows:

	gross tons
September	153,000
October	82,000
November (1-19)	17,000
Total	252,000

New vessels built and available for service in the same period, these circles claim, are 128, while 70 prizes have been obtained. The net loss, therefore, is 54 ships. These figures contrast sharply with those of 1917, when gross losses amounted to 307,000 tons a month or 810,000 tons over a period of two months and 19 days.

The figures of British tonnage entering British ports were:

	Tons
September	4,509,000
October	4,384,000
November (first 20 days)	3,214,000
Total	12,107,000

The corresponding clearance figure in 1917 was 12,205,000 tons.

The last figures, it is stated, should be used cautiously for the purpose of deriving percentage losses.

German Exports Hit

The "Financial News" estimates that the British and French ban will reduce German exports by £90,000,000 (£1 equivalent to 17 Reichsmarks).

This figure, the journal says, will be compounded as follows:

Coal and coke	£11,000,000
Textiles	£ 4,500,000
Pape and paper goods	£ 5,600,000
Chemicals	£20,000,000
Iron and steel	£ 7,500,000
Tools and iron ware	£14,000,000
Machinery	£21,000,000
Vehicles and ships	£ 6,000,000

This, the "Financial News" adds, amounts to 45 per cent. of German exports and constitutes a complete refutation of the emphatic statement by Herr Walther Funk, German Minister of Commerce, two months ago, that Germany would be able to maintain 80 per cent. of her pre-war exports, thus securing sufficient foreign exchange to finance the whole of the reduced supply of imports which she was physically able to secure.—Reuter.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

BARBARIAN OUTRAGE

It was remarked yesterday in this column that after the breaking off of diplomatic relationships between Finland and Russia, a move made by Moscow, the next step to war would be a very small one, though it was not then to be anticipated that M. Stalin would move so quickly as he is reported to have done. Without any formal declaration of war the Soviet Government has launched its forces in a general attack upon the territory of Finland, and the world is again being given an exhibition of totalitarian war in which every accepted canon of decency is thrown to the wind, in an attempt by a huge nation to overwhelm a small one whose only offence has been a desire, and a determination to preserve its independence, and integrity in order to work out its own destiny. That this action should have aroused the fiercest indignation the world over, and more particularly in the United States is not surprising, for a more loathesome display of tyrannical force, excelling, if that is possible, that of the Reich against Poland, it is difficult to perceive. There is something more to it. Washington's offer of its good offices in adjusting the Russian-Finnish dispute was not a day old. It had been accepted by Finland and ignored by the Soviet Government, and a more discourteous rebuff it is impossible to conceive. What the action of Washington will be in answer to it will probably be revealed in a few days, but, if President Roosevelt decides to break off relations with Moscow, he will undoubtedly have behind him the unanimous support of the people of the United States. There is a further significance about the whole matter which should not be overlooked. It is credibly reported that the Reich, while professing some sort of sympathy with Finland, advised its Government to settle with Moscow peaceably, in other words to surrender, and, in the circumstances, the maintenance of Nazi neutrality amounts in this case merely to another of those betrayals which have characterized Herr Hitler's policy these last few months, and that a betrayal of a country which the Reich itself assisted into existence.

If the rest of the Scandinavian countries are watching developments with the gravest anxiety their perturbation is perfectly comprehensible; if in the Balkans certain states are wondering when their turn will come it need cause no surprise, for Herr Hitler has sold the pass which enables Russia to take an active part in European affairs, permitting the Russian menace to overshadow eastern Europe from the North Cape to the Dardanelles. And he has sold it in an attempt to avert that defeat in the west which by his embarkation upon warfare he has invited for himself. All that will be poor comfort to the Finns in this their darkest hour. Their small army, of about 600,000 men at the utmost, well-trained and well-equipped as they admittedly are, run grave risks of being overwhelmed by the enormous forces Moscow is able to throw into the field. That they may be expected to give a good account of themselves, should the Soviet press matters too far, may be taken for granted, for the Finns are a proud people and devoted to their democracy which they succeeded in carving out for themselves a little over two decades ago. The resignation of the Finnish Government, one of the immediate objectives of the Soviet Government has, it is reported occurred. It remains to be seen whether the new Cabinet will adopt a more conciliatory attitude towards Russian demands than its predecessor, though it may be taken for granted that the new demands which Moscow will make will now be more far-reaching than those upon which the two countries split. If the Finns decides to bend before the storm and endeavour to save whatever is possible out of the wreckage there will be few to blame them, but if on the other hand they realize that now their very existence as a nation is at stake and they decide to fight it out there will not be many who will not sympathize with them, in their grim decision. There are conditions which no proud, virile nation can endure, and faced with them they have little to choose between passively entering into a tyrannous helotry, or to fight it out in the remote hope that after all they may be able to save themselves.

M. Stalin stands today branded for all time to come with the same stigma of perfidy and treachery which must now characterize the notoriety of Herr Hitler. The greater treachery is yet to come, though perhaps not far distant, when one of them will betray the other. That possibility has always been in the Nazi mind which has comforted itself with the thought that the concessions which have been made to Moscow are only of a temporary nature to be snatched back immediately the time and conditions are ripe for such an action. It is a possibility which has been fully recognized by M. Stalin who in the case of the invasion of Poland acted with a rapidity which showed no trust in the assurances of Berlin, securing his rewards for himself and not waiting for Germany to make good any promises which had been made. The way in which Herr Hitler and M. Stalin trust each other would be food for much cynical amusement were the situation not so grimly tragic. Future possibilities present no comfort to the Finns in this hour of distress. They are faced with the choice of surrender or fighting it out to the bitter end. There are some factors which would operate favourably for them should they decide to fight, the nature of the country, its marshes, lakes and forests, affording obstacles to the invader and cover for the defenders. Their case may not prove so hopeless as a mere comparison of figures would make it seem, and even if they did not emerge victorious from the struggle they might still be able to inflict such injury upon the enemy as to induce him to refrain from endeavouring to deprive them of their independence. That, however, is a remote hope, and it is better to face the fact that the ultimate development of Russian and German policies in northern Europe is a complete domination of the Scandinavian peninsula, to which the subjugation of Finland is but the first step. Whether Moscow, and Berlin will part company over the division of the spoils which Scandinavia offers remains to be seen, and it may yet be in German interest at some time or another to see the re-creation of the Finnish state as a buffer against Russian intention on Norway and Sweden.

The Under Water Campaign

Mr. William Simms, foreign editor of the Scripps-Howard newspapers in the United States, has made an interesting review of the damage done to British shipping by the unrestricted submarine, and mine campaign conducted by Germany, and is in itself a sharp answer to the extraordinary claims put forward by the Reich. In two months and nineteen days the amount of British shipping destroyed was 252,000 tons. Against that 128 ships have been completed, or made available, and seventy prizes have been secured, making a net loss on balance of 54 ships. For the similar period in 1917, when the German submarine campaign was at its height, 810,000 tons were destroyed, so that up to the present the rate of German destruction of British shipping is something rather over one-quarter of what it was then. There has been no serious variation in the amount of tonnage entering British ports during the period under review as compared with 1917, the difference amounting to no more than 98,000 tons out of a gross tonnage in 1917 of 12,205,000. While it would be unwise to seek to minimize the amount of damage which the German submarine and mine have been doing, the conclusion is unescapable that unless the enemy can do much more harm than they are at present effecting they will be able to make no really valuable contribution to the decision of the war in their favour, for, as Mr. Simms points out, at the present rate of destruction it would take Germany fifteen years to sweep Allied and neutral shipping off the seas. The Allies would be in a very parlous condition with regard to foodstuffs long before that period had elapsed, but the success of the anti-U-boat campaign, and the confidence that the mine menace will shortly be adequately countered, affords every reason for believing that the not too distant future will see another reduction in the amount of harm the Reich will be able to do to the Allies' mercantile marine. At the same time a substantial number of German vessels has already fallen into Allied hands, and more may be expected before the war ends, while victory should ensure that whatever German vessels there may be available shall fall into Allied possession as reparation for the harm which is now being inflicted.

Such Language!

Vituperation over the radio, a product of the Goebbels school of vocal strategy, might well be the new weapon which Hitler mentioned for it possesses in full the qualification Hitler claimed. That was, Germany could not be attacked by it, and this point is conceded because few other peoples, as obtuse and lacking a sense of humour as the Nazi rulers of Germany, would be so assinine as to indulge in it. However, this form of offence is not confined to Germany. Judging by the latest telegrams Soviet Russian action against Finland was preceded by a smokescreen of abuse worthy of some of the best effort of the Goebbels' school. Things have come to a sorry pass in international affairs when, in order to prepare the ground for a severance of diplomatic relations prior to military action, the army has to be stirred into a sense of fury by the use of such epithets as "mad dogs," "dirty dogs, jesters and bastards" directed at the enemy over the radio. This is how the radio propaganda school of Soviet Russia approached the Finnish problem. The rigours of warfare and the violent passions aroused always did undermine the delicacy of words and thought otherwise maintained in relations between states but not to the extent of the present conflict and its threatening repercussions in the Baltic region. Sir Nevile Henderson, former British Ambassador to Berlin, has described in his final report the influence of Dr. Goebbels' propaganda machine which was swung into action not only to sway German public opinion on contemplated military coups, but also when Hitler himself showed signs of indecision regarding his ultimate designs which the extremists desired to expedite. Would it be too far-fetched to suggest that a similar condition exists in regard to Stalin and his army? The introduction of Billingsgate market atmosphere into these conflicts between nations is, to say the least, a sorry form of apology for aggression.

Nazi Arithmetic

The entertainment quality of German broadcasts has been frequently remarked upon in the British Press, and judging from a sample reproduced locally it is no wonder that this should be so. The Chief Editor of the German broadcast from Berlin, is one Hans Fritsche, a most amusing fellow, who, with alleged sarcasm and merriment, seeks to tear to pieces statements made by British authorities. One such broadcast dealt with the British food situation, and in the course of his remarks the sprightly Hans had the following to say:—

> The third item was the most tasty one and intended to make the months of the poor Germans water, but it was at the same time the most careless revelatons of meat were stored in He assured the press that at present not less than 200,000 tnos of meat were stored in England. Since this gentleman holds a high position in the British Government's food control system, he ought to know that 200,000 tons of meat are exactly 48 Million English lbs. that is approximately 10 tons per head for England's population of 48 million, or—taking as a basis the amount of meat alloted to German workmen, this means a reserve of meat for exactly, and no more than two months. And this is the England that is attempting to starve Germany;

It is possible now to see how the remarkable tales of casualties inflicted upon the British Navy come into being. It appears to be something like this: someone reports that a British vessel has been sunk, this is heard ten times by someone or other, and it follows that of course ten British vessels have been destroyed. But for sheer arithemical ingenuity Hans takes the proverbial biscuit in the above. By a species of highly-original calculation, which completely puts the despised Einstein in the shade, he turns 200,000 tons of meat into 48,000,000 lb which is, he reports, equivalent to 10 tons per head of Britain population of 48,000,000. It follows, therefore, that by his own method of computation Hans has transformed 200,000 tons of meat into 480,000,000 tons, showing the astonishing things which propaganda can do. Britons apparently consume no less than five tons of meat per mensem which obviously accounts for something or other,—or does it?

Hyperbolical

THIS story is told of an old Fife minister who rose to preach to a well-filled church on a very warm day.

He observed that the congregation was drowsy so he deliberately introduced the word "hyperbolical" into his opening remarks.

Then he paused and said, "Now, my friends, some of you may not understand this word hyperbolical—I'll explain it. Suppose that I were to say that this congregation were all asleep in this church at the present time, I would be speaking hyperbolically; because (looking round) I don't believe that much more than one-half of you are sleeping."

The effect was immediate, for there was a great deal of nudging and shuffling until the congregation were all on the alert.

"Hell of It"

A MOTORIST rapped at St. Peter's gate and upon his entrance to heaven was shown thousands of miles of golden pavement. "Fine highways," he said, "But where are the automobiles, St. Peter?"

"Well, my dear motorist," said St. Peter, "I'm sorry to say you'll find all the automobiles down below."

"Too bad," sighed the motorist, 'but I prefer to stay with my car."

Before long the motorist faced Satan at the other gate. Within were parked scores of high-powered autos. "Great! Swell!" he cried, "which one is mine?" Satan told him he could take his choice.

"Well, that's certainly fine," he beamed, selecting one of the magnificent cars and climbing in behind the wheel, "Now show me the highways."

"There aren't any," answered Satan. "That's the hell of it."

Thanks Awfully

GLANCING through a recent book on King Solomon we were interested to note that just one of the little presents that he sent to the Queen of Sheba as some slight token of his regard consisted of 1,000 milk-white steers, 5,000 oxen, 2,000 goats, and 1,000 Nubian slaves, says Lane-Norcott in the "Daily Mail."

We mention this fact here because it reminds us that during the last war a little actress whom we knew slightly was presented with a somewhat similar gift by a foreign potentate whom she had pleased with her toe dancing. It got her into no end of trouble with the local authorities, as can be seen from the following letter which she received from the Muddleham Town Hall:—

> Dear Madame,
> I must ask you to make immediate arrangements to collect a large herd of white steers, together with a quantity of oxen and goats, which have been straying in this Borough since last Friday. These animals, which I am informed are your property, have completely disorganized the bus and tram services and are a grave source of danger and annoyance to ratepayers.
> There are also 1,000 Nubian slaves camping in the Recreation Ground, who state that they belong to you. If this is correct, kindly remove them at once, as camping in the Recreation Ground is strictly prohibited by our by-laws.
> Faithfully yours,
> JOS TIBBLES,
> (Town Clerk)

Even before she could answer this letter, her admirer, who was the soul of generosity, sent her another whopping great gift—this time of camels and elephants—and, in the end, she was obliged to flee the country.

So don't grumble, girls, when that handsome Militiaman calls with only one box of chocolates (or a single goat) under his arm. Remember enough is as good as a feast.

Finns Hold Up Soviet Invading Forces

Petsamo Port, Hogland Isle, Rybachi Peninsula Occupied; Karelian Isthmus Line Held; Russian Bombers Active; Red Fleet Shell Burning Capital

Helsinki, Dec. 1.

THE port of Petsamo fell into Soviet hands this morning following an intensive bombardment, it was announced here today. Also heavily bombed today but still holding out were Kirkenaes and Salmejaervi. Fires are still raging in Helsinki as a result of yesterday's air raids. Another air raid warning was sounded here at 1.15 p.m. today. Anti-aircraft batteries opened fire, while the populace reached their shelters in calm and good order.

The official toll of yesterday's air raids is forty dead and sixty wounded. The Soviet bombs fell in residential districts where no military objectives were to be found. Members of the Soviet Legation still in Helsinki were able to see for themselves that Soviet bombs fell in the open part of the city and not only on the airport, fourteen kilometres away. All window-panes of the Soviet Legation were shattered by the explosions.

Canadian engineers attached to the Petsamo mines have left for Norway.

According to the latest information received in Helsinki, at the end of the first day of fighting the Russians had not only attacked the larger towns, industrial centres, and railroads from the air, but had also started violent offensives on three points of the Finnish frontier, the chief attack being launched on the Karelian isthmus where the Finnish defences are extremely strong. The Soviets also attacked north of Lake Lagoda in the direction of Impilhati and Sortavala to effect a sweeping movement round the Karelian fortifications. The Finns are resisting successfully there owing to the thick forests covered with snow.

In the extreme north, the Soviets have occupied the Rybachi peninsula. Owing to the severe climate, barren soil and lack of communications there, the military operations do not extend beyond mere patrol activities and the advance by light columns.

Finnish troops were resisting bravely against heavy Soviet land, air and sea attacks on the Karelian Isthmus.

Several buildings, including military establishments, were burning in Helsinki since last night but the population remained calm and steadily prepared for mass evacuation. An air raid alarm was sounded in Turku port at 11.40 a.m. yesterday and a hospital in the city was bombed and set on fire.

Field Marshal Mannerheim

First Finnish Communique

The Finnish Government met in secret session yesterday shortly after first Soviet invaders drove across the Finnish frontier, the first official communique of the Soviet-Finnish conflict announced last night. Red Army forces plunged into Finnish territory yesterday morning suddenly without formal declaration of war, it asserted. They advanced in several regions, but met with stout resistance and had to fall back. While Red warplanes droned over Helsinki and other cities on their missions of death, Finnish defenders north of Lake Ladoga stood off repeated Soviet attacks, destroyed two Soviet tanks. Not a single Finnish soldier took advantage of Finnish successes to cross the Soviet frontier, the communique added.

Units of the Red Fleet appeared yesterday morning off several points along the coast and sent salvos crashing into Finnish territory. The town of Viborg was bombed and nine people killed. Helsinki, proud capital of peaceful Finland, was bombed several times yesterday by relays of Soviet planes. There were several civilian casualties, many of them women and children. Lathi also was bombed and four civilians were killed, thirteen injured. Hango Island, strategic base in the Gulf of Finland which the U.S.S.R. demanded in vain, was also visited by bombers, and one person was killed while many were injured, the official communique concluded.—Havas.

British Red Cross Supplies

London, Dec. 1.

The British Red Cross rushed assistance to Finland, sending medical supplies by an aeroplane which was reported today to have arrived safely. Supplies of anti-tetanus serum, morphia, pneumonia serum and a new anaesthetic known as Evitan as well as other drugs were carried by the plane on its errand of mercy.—United Press.

M. Erkko's Daugher Hurt

Helsinki, Dec. 1.

Patricia, 17-year-old daughter of the Finnish Foreign Minister, M. Eljas Erkko, was slightly wounded when the stateman's house was burned during the second Soviet air raid yesterday, it was confirmed today. M. Erkko himself was not at home when his house was struck in the second bombardment. His wife and seven-year-old son Aatos were at home, but neither was hurt.—United Press.

Legation's Phone Cut

Moscow, Dec. 1.

The telephone connections with the Finnish Legation here were reported to have been cut today.—United Press.

"Baltic Gibraltar" Fallen

Stockholm, Dec. 1.

"The Baltic Gibraltar" Hango Island—is reported here to have fallen into the hands of Soviet troops after bombardment from the air. This report, however, cannot be confirmed.

U.S. May Cut Ties With Soviets

Finland Accepted Offer But Russia Refused Any Mediation by America

Washington, Dec. 1.

"Soviet Russia's invasion of Finland is a profound shock to the United States and has jeopardized the rights of mankind to self-government," declared President Roosevelt in a formal statement which he read at the press conference today. "All peoples should unanimously condemn this new resort to military force as an arbiter of international differences."

President Roosevelt declared that it was tragic to see the policy of force spreading and realize that wanton disregard for law was still on the march. "The people and Government of Finland," he continued, "have a long, wholly peaceful record, which has won for them the respect and warm regard of the people and the government of the United States."

When questioned, President Roosevelt made no comment on the possibility of the application of the Neutrality Act towards the Soviet-Finnish conflict. He also refused to comment on a question as to whether the United States was considering the withdrawal of recognition from Soviet Russia.

Appeal Against Bombing

President Roosevelt has asked Soviet Russia and Finland for a pledge not to resort to the inhuman barbarism of bombing civilians from the air.

United States diplomatic representatives delivered the message to Moscow and Helsinki following the reports of the bombardment of Helsinki. The message was almost indentical to those recently dispatched to Great Britain, France and Germany.

The State Department has received a report that during one of yesterday's raids on Helsinki, fifteen Soviet aeroplanes dropped bombs in the immediate neighbourhood of the United States Legation. The staff of the Legation, the report continued, was evacuated to a hotel.

A telephone conversation between Washington and Helsinki is reported to have been interrupted shortly after 7 o'clock (G.M.T.) this morning by air-raid warnings and the noise of bursting bombs.

Questioned about the possibility of the United States applying the provisions of the Neutrality Act to Russia and Finland, Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, yesterday refused to make any comment. He said that at some later date he might be able to give reasons for not announcing decisions immediately, says the Dow Jones agency.—Reuter.

U.S. to Review Policy

Washington, Dec. 1.

President Roosevelt may summon legislative leaders of both houses of Congress to the White House today to confer on American foreign policy, particularly toward Soviet Russia, it was indicated here last night.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, and the Finnish Minister in Washington conferred with President Roosevelt last night and it was understood that the President had notified Congressional leaders to hold themselves in readiness for a White House conference. There were no immediate indications when the President would invoke the Neutrality Act in Russia's undeclared war against Finland. The President's notification to Congressional leaders to be ready to come to Washington at a moment's notice was regarded as signficant because the President recently promised to confer with legislative leaders before any important move in international affairs.

Soviets Refused Mediation

Government officials made no formal comment on suggestions of breaking off relations with Russia by the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Key Pittman, and other Congressmen that the United States should review Soviet-American relations in view of latest European developments.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, declined to comment on the Russian invasion of Finland less than 24 hours after he had offered Finland and Russia the good offices of the United States in seeking a peaceful settlement of the Russo-Finnish crisis.

"Bloody Hand of Stalin"

Senator William King, Democrat of Utah, openly urged severance of relations with Russia last night, saying he hoped the United States would "no longer grasp the bloody hand of Stalin." He described the Soviet Union as a "brutal, semi-barbarious land governed by tyrants and those who seek the destruction of liberty and democratic government."

President Roosevelt conferred with the Secretary of State immediately after returning from Warm Springs, Ga., yesterday. Government circles disclosed that Finland had accepted America's offer to use her good offices in the Russo-Finnish crisis but Russia had intimated she would reject the offer a few hours before she launched her undeclared war against Finland.

Soon after midnight cables began pouring into the State Department from diplomats in Moscow, Helsinki and other Baltic capitals, all stressing the gravity fo the situation. Before paybreak dispatches confirming the

Finns Form New Cabinet For Parleys

Embassy in London Says "No Question Of Surrender" Now

London, Dec. 1.

The resignation of the Finnish Cabinet should not be taken as a sign of capitulation for there can be no question of Finland "surrendering" it was officially stated by the Finnish Legation here today. The Cabinet has been merely reshuffled on a wider political basis in order to enjoy the full backing of the whole country. If possible, the Government will endeavour to resume negotiations with Soviet Russia. The Soviet advance into Finnish territory has been effectively checked and no Soviet troops were landed on the Finnish coast, the Legation added.

A new Cabinet, it is learned here, has been formed under the Premiership of M. Viano Tanner, Finance Minister in the former Cabinet. It is understood that negotiations will be opened with Russia with a view to the conclusion of an armistice. The new Foreign Minister is Professor T. M. Kivimeaki, who was Premier from 1932 to 1936.

While thousands of Finns were leaving the capital, the former Government resigned early this morning following a dramatic meeting of Parliament in a secret vault.—Havas.

Rebel Finnish Government

London, Dec. 1.

A new Finnish Government has been established at Terijoki, comprising rebel Finn soldiers and leftist Finnish politicians, the Moscow radio was heard to announce at 3 p.m. today.—United Press.

Armistice Negotiations

London, Dec. 1.

Armistice negotiations have begun between the Soviet Union and Finland, according to unconfirmed reports reaching London.

An official announcement is reported to have been made at Helsinki that it has been decided to reconstruct the Cabinet to enable parties hitherto unrepresented to be represented in it. The rumour that M. Viano Tanner, former Socialist Finance Minister, will become Prime Minister is still unconfirmed. It is understood that the formation of a coalition is intended, with a view to avoiding the destruction of Helsinki and to open negotiations with Moscow.

The Finnish Legation here declares there is no question of Finland "surrendering." The Government is reshuffled and given a broader basis. Negotiations will be resumed with the Soviet if possible.

Messages from Helsinki are subject to much delay. The latest message, filed at Helsinki at 00.47 a.m. today, states: "It is reliably reported that the Finnish Government is informing the Soviet Government that it is prepared to resign.—Reuter.

Part of Soviet Demand

Copenhagen, Dec. 1.

It is reported here that the Soviet ultimatum to Finland demanded the formation of a new Government with which negotiations could be opened. If Finland had not complied with this demand, the Soviet is said to have threatened that Helsinki would be levelled to the ground.—Reuter.

Finnish Parliament Meeting

Berne, Dec. 1.

Details have been received here from Helsinki on the momentous meeting last night of the Finnish Parliament. It is revealed that the Deputies met in total darkness on the steps of the Parliament building. They then boarded buses which drove to the secret place where the meeting was opened at 8 p.m.

After hearing statements made by the Premier, M. A. K. Kajander, the Foreign Minister, M. Elias Erkko, and the National Defence Minister, M. J. Niukkanen, the Parliament decided to accept the offer of mediation made by the United States and voted its confidence in the Government.

The "Neue Zurcher Zeitung" says that "in view of the confidence thus expressed to the Government, the latter's sudden resignation came as a complete surprise."

No details have been received so far as to the full composition of the new Cabinet. The information received from a German source that the new Premier, M. Viano Tanner, has been entrusted with the opening of negotiations with Moscow has not been confirmed so far. It is further learned from reliable sources that upon firm instructions, the Finnish troops are holding out at all strategic points despite heavy Soviet shelling. Only some undefendable advanced posts have been relinquished.—Havas.

Horde of Pirates Beaten Off By Heroic Officers, Guards

Butterfield & Swire, ss. Wulin Scene of Early Morning Battle in Delta; One Pirate Killed

AN epic story of a heroic fight in pitch darkness between five Russian guards and ship's officers against an overwhelming horde of Chinese pirates, who were put to flight as daybreak dawned, was told yesterday evening when the ss. Wulin, Messrs. Butterfield & Swire coastal steamer, berthed at the French Bund carrying on board one dead pirate, a wounded Russian sergeant of the guard, and a detachment of British bluejackets with steel helmets, rifles and fixed bayonets. Loaded with a cargo of raw cotton and Chinese passengers, the ss. Wulin showed few signs of having been the scene of a furious battle earlier in the day in the Yangtze Delta, although one particularly gruesome sight was provided when the body of the dead pirate, his head covered in bloodstained cloth, was carried ashore to be placed in a mortuary wagon. Shortly afterwards, the wounded sergeant walked ashore. His coat, the right sleeve of which was bloodstained, was thrown around his shoulders as he was led to an ambulance which was to take him to the Russian Orthodox Hospital. Another pirate, badly wounded by firing from the guards, is being kept by the Royal Navy at Woosung.

Scene of the attack was San Ho Kwang in the Yangtze Delta where at 3.20 a.m. yesterday morning the Wulin, under Capt. W. L. Thomas, a native of Wales, was anchored after loading a cargo of raw cotton for Shanghai. In the darkness of the early morning the ship was surrounded by sampans, junks and lighters on which the usual large crowds of Chinese congregated.

Under cover of darkness and aided by the light craft surrounding the ship, the pirates chose a moment to strike and from the shore many sampans sped towards the anchored vehicle, carrying a well-armed horde of desperadoes. Taken unawares at the first onslaught, the Russian guards of the ship found several of the pirates already on board, with machine-guns blazing away at them from the sampans.

Furious Reply

Showing great bravery, they returned the fire, running from one side of the ship to the other as the pirates swarmed aboard with rifles and pistols in their hands. The ship's officers under the captain joined in the battle but, greatly outnumbered, they were forced to retire to the bridge deck with the guards. Here they defied onslaught after onslaught from the maddened pirates, who had gained control of the rest of the ship, and at daybreak they were able to beat off the attack and steam away to safety.

So furious had been their reply to the fire from the pirates that two of the attackers were found lying on the deck where they had been shot down when attempting to rush the bridge. Unable to take them away the rest of the band had flown leaving them at anybody's tender mercy. One of them was dead, having been shot through the head. His companion, though still alive, was badly wounded in three places and his condition was plainly serious. After the ship had steamed away to report to the British gunboat, Gnat, on duty in the delta, the wounded man was placed on board the naval vessel for treatment. An armed escort was taken aboard from the Gnat and the Wulin continued her voyage to Shanghai.

About 40 Pirates

The Russian sergeant, K. Shastoff, suffered only a flesh wound in his right arm and his condition is not serious. The rest of the guards, whose heroic fight against tremendous odds earned praise from all quarters when the Wulin berthed in Shanghai, suffered no further casualties nor were any of the ship's officers hurt by bullets. As far as could be ascertained last night no cargo was stolen from the ship.

One of the Russian guards, who was very modest when recounting his harrowing experience, told a "North-China Daily News" reporter that the pirates seemed to number about 40. He stressed the fact that both the guards and officers were taken by surprise in the pitch darkness and, therefore, their task of defending the vessel was made difficult.

He illustrated how the pirates poured down from gangways of upper decks only to be beaten back by the guards' fire and how, at the same time, a steady fusillade was being kept up by three machine gunners in the sampans. In the end, he said, the guards and officers were forced to retreat to the bridge deck, which was kept intact against all comers during the long battle of over two hours.

Weapons Taken

When the Wulin arrived two pistols, one a Mauser automatic and the other an inferior weapon, were taken into custody by the River Police, who conducted enquiries on the vessel. Also found on the decks were rifle and revolver ammunition left there by the pirates.

In an official statement Messrs. Butterfield & Swire said that while loading at San Ho Kwang at approximately 3.20 a.m. yesterday morning pirates approached the vessel in junks and boarded the ship by means of cotton bales on the decks. Two pirates then approached the bridge deck and opened fire, in the course of which one Russian sergeant of the ship's guard was wounded.

The guard then returned the fire, killing one pirate and seriously wounding the other. From then on the pirates were in control of the ship with the exception of the bridge deck, which was held by officers and the guard. With the approach of daylight the pirates left the ship which got under way.

Soviet Population Hails Entry of Red Army Troops into Finland

Official Broadcasts Declare Finnish People Will Be Freed from "Unworthy Rulers"; "Lasting Glory"

Moscow, Dec. 1.

The Soviet population enthusiastically hailed the report that Red Army troops had entered Finland, the official broadcast over Soviet Radio said this morning. The Finnish people will be freed from their unworthy rulers, the broadcast added. "The heroic Red Army crossed the Finnish frontier to destroy once and for all the imperialist agitators. The land, sea, and air armies honourably fulfil their mission and will cover themselves with lasting glory."

Soviet radio stations also broadcast the official communique announcing the outbreak of hostilities with Finland, declaring that several incidents again occurred on the night of November 29. "A group of Finnish soldiers crossed the frontier near the village of Kovaino, north of Lake Ladoga, and attacked the Soviet guards there. The Finnish detachments were repulsed with heavy losses. Later another Finnish detachment opened fire with machine-guns against Soviet troops near the village of Kaosuli in the region of the Karelian isthmus. The invaders were repelled again."

The communique mentioned a few more incidents, in which eleven Finns were captured. "Owing to these further provocations and the act of aggression by Finnish troops, the High Command of the Red Army ordered our troops to cross the Finnish border at 8 a.m. on November 30. Soviet detachments davanced immediately in several parts of the frontier near the Karelian isthmus and occupied several villages and railway stations, advancing as far as the town of Talioki. Several dozens of Finnish soldiers were captured. The Soviet air forces,," the communique ended, "effected scouting flights over Finland despite the unfavourable weather, and bombed the airports near Viipuri and Helsinki."

Just a few hours before the Red engine of war plunged across the Finnish frontier, the Finnish Minister here, Baron A. A. Yrjo-Koskinen, called on M. Vladimir Potemkin, First Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, and asked when the Kremlin wished him and his staff to leave. He was told, it was reliably reported, that there was no hurry, that he should await instructions from Helsinki.—Havas.

Press Censorship in British Colonies

Degree and Methods Differ, Commons Informed

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Dec. 1

There was some censorship of the Press in almost all Colonies, although the exact degree and methods differed, stated Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary of State for Colonies, in the House of Commons yesterday.

Press matter sent from Great Britain to the Colonies was censored in the United Kingdom. "Representations have been made to me on the question of double censorship," Mr. MacDonald added, "and I have been consulting other departments concerned with a view to seeing what relaxation is practicable. There is no censorship in Great Britain of Press matter from the Colonies, either by cable or mail, though telegrams received by Press agencies, if connected with the war, are submitted to censorship before being issued."—Reuter.

Non-Germans Not Being Conscripted, Says Berlin

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

Berlin, Dec. 1.

It is officially stated here that Germany has no intention of calling up Poles, or other non-German nationals for military service. This refutes earlier reports published abroad that Germany was contemplating enforcing general military service within the enlarged borders of the Reich.—Reuter.

Britain Calls in New 20-23 Age Group

London, Dec. 1.

Men up to the age of 23 are now being called in for military service, says a Royal Proclamation issued here this morning. The Proclamation makes liable for service all male British subjects who by today have reached the age of 20, but are not yet 23.

The date of registration has been set for December 9, but it is not expected that the new age group will be called up for about a month after registration, and at least not before the New Year. It is estimated that about 250,000 men will be involved.—Reuter.

Soviet Demands on Norway Rumoured

Scandinavians Volunteer For Finnish Army; German People Resent Invasion

Copenhagen, Dec. 1.

Russia has sent demands to Oslo for three Norwegian ports, unconfirmed reports said here last night following Helsinki reports admitting that the Red Army had completely occupied Fisherman's Peninsula.

Unofficial reports said Soviet planes had again bombed Viborg and Kotka, both on the south coast of Finland, and that a clash between Finnish and Russian naval forces was imminent.

The Finnish fleet was reported to have steamed out of Helsinki late yesterday and the Russian Baltic fleet was understood to be en route to Helsinki.—United Press.

Swedes Consider Baltic Crisis

Stockholm, Dec. 1.

The Swedish Foreign Minister, M. Richard Sandler, called a meeting of the Parliamentary Committee on Foreign Affairs here at 11 p.m. yesterday after Russia invaded Finland.

The purpose of the meeting was not announced, but it was believed obvious that the committee would consider the effects of Russia's undeclared war against Sweden's neighbour.

Officials here denied Copenhagen reports that a general summons had been sent out to Swedish airmen to report immediately to the Kastrup airdrome. Official quarters said Sweden probably would call up additional armed forces, but complete mobilization "is not yet contemplated," it was said.

Typical of the attitude of Sweden was the fact that hundreds of Swedish youths volunteered their services at the Finnish Legation here yesterday. Widespread indignation over the Russian attack on Finland was accompanied by anxiety because of the possibility that Russia might extend her frontier to Sweden's doorstep.

Swedish newspapers violently attacked the Soviet Union for its aggression against Finland and some papers said the Red Government was headed by "barbarians."—United Press.

Norwegians Indignant

Oslo, Dec. 1.

Hundreds of undergraduates from Oslo University demonstrated today before the Finnish Legation. The Finnish Minister, obviously moved, thanked the demonstrators for their sympathy. Before dispersing the undergraduates sang the Norwegian and Finnish national anthems.

"It is obvious that sheer unbridled force has replaced all Bolshevist ideology," comments the "Dagbladet" today. The paper adds: "The course of bloodstained world events is approaching Norway, but the opinion of the world is rising in abhorrence against aggression."—Reuter.

Indignation in Holland

Amsterdam, Dec. 1.

Indignation at the Russian invasion of Finland is general through Holland. Windows of the offices of the Dutch Communist newspaper, the "Volksdagblad," in Amsterdam, were smashed yesterday when news of the invasion became known.

German circles generally sympathize with the Finns and watch with apprehension the spread of Russian power in the Baltic, according to the Berlin correspondent of the "Telegraaf," in a message he was allowed by the censor to telephone from Berlin last night.

The correspondent adds: "Concessions are now coming to light which Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop (German Foreign Minister) had to make to Moscow to obtain the support of the Soviet Union. The Baltic states were sacrificed by Germany, and after raking in this booty the Soviet made demands in regard to a free hand in Finland. Sweden and Norway. Here, too, Germany gave way."

European Civilization Survival Depends on Allies

British Labour Party Condemns Soviet Act of Aggression; Desire to Spare Neutrals Stressed

London, Dec. 1.

SPEAKING in the debate on foreign affairs in the House of Commons last night, Mr. Hugh Dalton, Labour member for Durham, Bishop Auckland Division, declared that before the House had assembled the Labour Party had considered the Soviet-Finnish situation. They had reached the conclusion, Mr. Dalton said, that an act of aggression had been committed by a great power against a small democratic power. They particularly regretted that the Soviet Union had not accepted the United States' offer of mediation.

"It is no exaggeration to say that the survival of civilization in Europe depends on close and continuous co-operation between Great Britain and France," declared Mr. Dalton, who is the Labour Party's leading expert on international affairs. His statement was greeted by cheers in the House of Commons yesterday.

Leading the Opposition speakers in a debate on foreign affairs, Mr. Dalton spoke of the importance of Anglo-French co-operation. Welcoming the closer economic co-operation recently achieved between the two countries, he expressed the hope it might only be the first step in a still wider scheme in which other countries might participate.

Urging early consideration, in consultation with the French Government and the Dominions, of the character of the Allies' peace aims, so that if the war proved to be shorter than expected they would not be caught unprepared for the building of a peace which would endure, Mr. Dalton endorsed the Prime Minister's disavowal, in the debate on Tuesday, of vindictive terms.

German People Should Be Told

They should let the German people know, said Mr. Dalton, that after the war they desired to see a free and civilized Germany taking her place in a free, civilized Europe as a good neighbour and equal. There were stirrings within Germany that might lead sooner than some expected to the liquidation of the Nazi system and its bloody instrument, the Gestapo, declared Mr. Dalton. He advocated, as part of the framework they should be designing for the new Europe of which the Premier had spoken, some provision for the abatement of national sovereignty.

Replying, Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, said during the last war Lord Grey had defined the aims of British diplomacy in wartime as first, the preservation of Allied solidarity, and, secondly, the maintenance of relations with neutral countries. In the present conflict Great Britain and France had not only maintained Allied solidarity, but had made Allied unity. Great Britain had also maintained with success relations with neutrals. Obligations in this respect were greater in this war than in the last because there were more neutrals.

Desire to Spare Neutrals

The British Government, went on Mr. Butler, understood their difficulties and desired to spare them as much as possible, consistent with the primary objective of exercising belligerent rights and winning the war. They understood the hardships neutral countries were suffering, and in the new reprisals, under the Order-in-Council, would attempt to spare them as much as possible.

Having mentioned that the application of the new measures against German exports would be conducted by an Enemy Exports Committee, under the chairmanship of Lord Justice du Parcq, Mr. Butler went on to refer to evidence of the extent to which neutrals understood the British position and appreciated the radical difference between Britain's policy and that of the Germans of illegally sinking neutral ships at sight.

Allies Seek Certainty

Referring to the Allies' war aims, Mr. Butler said if their aims could be summed up in one word it would be certainty, instead of the terrible uncertainty through which they had just passed—the certainty that their liberty would prevail. British future policy should aim at reconciling their obligations with their strength, then carrying them out.

"If we have learnt that lesson, we can study all necessary conditions for a future ideal—any scheme, say, for a federal union or otherwise."

Passing to a detailed review of the country's relations with other states, Mr. Butler commented: "We are more closely allied with France than ever before, both in thought and action. The recent appointment of M. Monnet as the first chairman of the first Inter-Allied Official Co-ordinating Committee mocks at the despairing attempts of German propaganda to try and draw dissension between the aims and objects of the two nations."

Attitude Towards Balkans

Alluding to the Balkans, Mr. Butler said he was sure that any opportunity for improving trade with Greece would be taken, and the matter was under active consideration.

The Government, he commented, had been gratified to learn of the recent decision by Turkey and Bulgaria to reduce the number of troops in frontier regions. This, it was hoped, would lead to a renewal of confidence between the two Governments.

In the Mediterranean, Mr. Butler went on, their relations with Italy were friendly. In wartime certain difficulties must arise between the two countries, but the British Government would do its best to see that legitimate interests in Italy were as little interfered with or prejudiced as possible. It was hoped the joint economic committee recently set up would result in an improvement of Anglo-Italian trade to the mutual advantage of both countries.

Improving Ties with Spain

He hoped the task of improving relations and trade with Spain would be accomplished and the task of Spanish reconstruction facilitated to the greatest possible extent.

The Government was gratified by King Farouk's statement at the opening of the Egyptian parliament, illustrating the common aims of Egypt and Great Britain. Mentioning the Egyptian loss of substantial markets for her raw cotton in Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland, he described the proposal for the buying up of the crop, to a given maximum, if and when the price fell below a given level.

Mr. Butler further recalled the speech from the throne in Iraq, confirming the adherence of Iraq to their alliance. The British Government had also maintained long-standing friendly relations with the King of Saudi Arabia, he added.—Reuter.

Battle at Sea Off Norway Reported

Heavy Shell Fire Heard; German Planes Down and Nazi Airmen Rescued

Copenhagen, Dec. 1.

The sound of heavy shell fire and the sight of bursting bombs on Wednesday morning and again at noon the same day, indicated that a large-scale running air and sea battle was taking place off the coast of Norway, according to reports reaching here last night.

Inhabitants of the town of Malloey, north of Bergen, Norway, said that on Wednesday the battle had moved close enough to the coast for the firing to be heard from the shore and observers could make out definitely that the war vessels were British. The planes darting into view over the ships could not be clearly seen and their nationality could not be established. A few scattered German planes which were downed in the region were believed to have been participants in the battle.

It was believed that four Germans, whose plane landed at Listra, Norway, and five others picked up after landing in other parts of Norway, were among the combatants.—United Press.

Raids Over Scotland

London, Dec. 1.

Four German reconnaissance planes flew over the east coast of Scotland yesterday and two Heinkel bombers appeared in the region of the Firth of Forth. Royal Air Force fighting planes ascended at the sight of the planes and fought the invaders, it was reported. Two German planes were also sighted further north, but they were driven off by R.A.F. fighters.

It was officially announced that two R.A.F. fighters encountered a German plane north of the Firth of Forth. The two British planes overtook the German plane, a Dornier seaplane, and brought it down. The German crew was picked up by a Norwegian ship, the announcement said.—United Press.

New British Minefield

London, Dec. 1.

Great Britain has laid a new minefield in the North Sea, covering 300 square miles, about midway between the Thames Estuary and the Schelde in Holland. Notice of the position of the new minefield was given by the Admiralty, which added the warning that vessels entering the area did so at their own peril. Merchant shipping between Great Britain and Holland normally passes near the new minefield, and shipping from Scandinavian waters may also have to make a detour to reach the Thames Estuary or the Channel.

The Ministry of Economic Warfare stated last night that if neutrals tried to convoy vessels carrying German exports with warships, that would not alter the legal right of Great Britain to search the vessels.

The Newcastle steamer Sheafcrest (2,730 tons) sank after striking a mine off the south-east coast. Twenty-nine survivors have been landed, several being injured.—Reuter.

Finns Hold Up Soviet Invading Forces

The Finns are stated to be resisting bravely on the Karelian Isthmus, which is being attacked by land, sea and air.

About 500 Soviet bombers took part in the raid on Helsinki yesterday, according to an unconfirmed report received here. The number of victims are believed to be large. In one section of the town, it is reported, about 70 persons were buried in a cellar were they had sheltered. Not many survived, and the 17-year old daughter of M. Elias Erkko, the Foreign Minister, is said to have been badly injured when bombs destroyed his residence. Another air raid warning was sounded in the Finnish capital this morning. No bombs were dropped, however, and the "all-clear" was sounded an hour later.—Reuter.

Finnish Port, Island Taken

Helsinki, Dec. 1.

The Finnish Fleet left here today. Hango Island was bombed three times by Soviet planes. Viborg is reported to be in flames, while a hospital near the city has been hit by a bomb. Aabo was shelled by the Soviet Fleet and several hundred shells were fired at the town. An official report states that Soviet forces have occupied the island of Hogland and the Seiskaari peninsular.

Soviet forces crossed the frontier at Kyrsylae and Kaeanaesenke, and occupied the island of Seiskari, 40 miles west of Kronstadt. After bombardment by warships, the port of Terijoki, ten miles from the frontier, was also occupied by Soviet troops.

Incendiary bombs started large fires when ten Soviet bombers raided Helsinki yesterday afternoon. Many houses were still aflame last night. The bombers attacked in groups of twos and threes. One bomb fell near the main railway station and windows over a wide area were shattered. The technical high school was also set on fire. About 20 bombs were dropped including one very heavy missile, from which dense clouds of smoke arose, in the northern part of the city. The raiders were met with heavy anti-aircraft gun fire, and one Soviet plane was shot down in flames. Late last night the air raid siren was again sounded.

People Calm and Resolute

Reports are circulatng here that the U.S.S.R. sent Finland an ultimatum that unless she accedes to all Soviet demands today, the country will be devastated.

Calm prevails throughout Helsinki, although thirteen planes bombed the southern suburbs this morning. Bombs dropped on Helsinki aerodrome fell 400 yards from the administration building and caused little damage.

The city is being evacuated rapidly with perfect calm. There are no signs of distress, and women and children are quietly assembling at specified points, where buses and cars are picking them up for evacuation.

Parliament, which met last night, continued its session until the early hours of the morning.

Radio announcers are urging the populace not to remain in the streets during air raid alarms, and appeal for continued calmness.

It has been confirmed that parts of the frontier are now in Soviet hands. The belief exists that the Soviet intends to land troops at certain points on the coast.—Reuter.

Red Fleet Shell Helsinki

Rome, Dec. 1.

Soviet forces which crossed the Finnish border yesterday were last night rapidly advancing towards the Finnish "Maginot Line," about 20 miles from the border, according to a message from Helsinki.

It is reported a hospital at Enso was destroyed during a Soviet bombing raid.

Soviet warships bombarded Helsinki yesterday afternoon, but were immediately answered by coastal batteries.

Train and bus services in Helsinki are reported to have been suspended.—Reuter.

Highways Machine-gunned

Oslo, Dec. 1.

Finnish motorists from Petsamo, attempting to flee to Norway, were compelled to return because low-flying Soviet planes were machine-gunning the highway, Finnish refugees reaching northern Norway reported today. They confirmed that the "Fisherman's," or Rybatchi, Peninsula has been occupied by Soviet forces but refused any details.

Six Soviet planes, reports from northern Norway said, bombed Petsamo and also the villages of Parkins and Linhamari.

Hangoe Island was being heavily shelled by Russian warships today, but Helsinki was not attacked by planes, although there was an air raid alarm between 9 and 10 a.m. Helsinki was quiet after the alarm and traffic was normal. Soviet warships were visible from Helsinki this morning and were apparently approaching Helsinki but suddenly changed their course and proceeded to the open sea.—United Press.

"Bombing Technique"

Copenhagen, Dec. 1.

The Soviets are not planning an invasion of Finland but have simply planned to continue the "air raid technique" in an attempt to split the Government and the people as well as break their morale, the "National Tidende" Berlin correspondents said today in quoting political quarters who obtained this information from Moscow.—United Press.

Helsinki Red With Fires

London, Dec. 1.

Houses in Helsinki were still burning last night following the Soviet raids, it was learned today. The city was completely blacked-out but was still red with the fires. Several high explosive bombs were dropped near the harbour on unprotected houses. Windows of the Soviet Legation were among those shattered by bomb explosion.

The Finnish radio announced that Finnish forces have repelled the invaders at most points. Where the Russians succeeded in gaining a foothold, it added, their further advance was prevented. Near the Karelian Isthmus, the radio continued, two Soviet tanks were destroyed.

Forty persons were killed and 120 injured in the bombing of Helsinki, the Finnish radio declared. Most of the casualties, it says, were women and children. Four persons were killed and thirteen injured in the bombing of Lahti. All victims of the air-raids were civilians.—Reuter.

Claim Against British Firm Dismissed

Action for Salary Fails In H.M. Supreme Court

Judgment with costs for the defendant firm was given by Judge P. Grant Jones in H. M. Supreme Court yesterday following an action brought by Mr. Victor N. Morgin against Shotter, Madar & Co., represented in Court by Mr. J. G. F. Shotter and Mr. P. Madar. Plaintiff claimed a sum of $218, which he stated, was due to him as salary for four and a half months from April this year to August. Mr. E. L. Hartopp represented the defendants while Mr. E. T. Maitland appeared for plaintiff.

In their evidence Mr. Shotter and Mr. Madar denied that plaintiff had been promised a monthly salary of $80 and stated that plaintiff had been promised commission on any business he brought in. As Mr. Morgin had gained no business for the firm during the time he was connected with it, he earned no commission.

Both partners gave evidence of giving money as loans to plaintiff, Mr. Shotter adding that he had also given clothes and shoes. Mr. Madar stated that Morgin had been taken on following advice from Mr. Shotter, who had stated that they might be able to help him as he needed help. There had been no mention of salary, however, and nothing was ever said about $80 a month.

Never Existed

Witness stated that they let Morgin have money from time to time as the latter told them that he had had no food. A sum of $43 was given to him as he told them that he would be thrown out by his landlord if he did not get it and he was given another sum of $40. These were loans. Mr. Madar added that plaintiff often wrote little notes which were really begging letters. In one of them he had mentioned that he would do something desperate if he could not get any money. Small payments were made as a result of this.

In his judgment His Lordship stated that the case was decided by the one word salary. He was satisfied by the evidence before him that there was no mention of salary and the claim necessarily failed. He had done his best to assist the plaintiff in putting his case clearly before him and he had adjourned the hearing on Thursday to enable the plaintiff to produce further evidence if he could do so.

He had produced that further evidence but it had been rather against him. He was satisfied that Mr. Shotter had taken compassion on him and that both partners had helped him out of his difficulties. In return for that treatment he came to Court and preferred a claim based on salary which, he was satisfied, never existed.

Wang Ching-wei's New Government

Japanese Hopes for Firm And Secure Form

Questioned at yesterday's press conference whether the Japanese Government agreed with statements in Mr. Wang Ching-wei's "Central China Daily News" that the Japanese cannot defeat China, that economic co-operation does not exist and that all Japanese troops should be withdrawn excepting in north China, the Embassy spokesman with some qualifications, answered in the affirmative.

The basic principles of economic co-operation had been agreed upon, he said, but when pressed as to whether the Japanese would keep the railways and dominate shipping in the interior, he said that these questions could not be discussed publicly at this time.

When a firm central government had been established and had been recognized the Japanese most certainly would allow the Chinese to possess an army to keep peace and order. Mr. Wang had never suggested the immediate withdrawal of Japanese troops, he added.

The Japanese held that Mr. Wang Ching-wei should establish a government which would be satisfactory to the Chinese people and agreed that Mr. Wang should have a firm policy and institute a strong government.

Chungking Worried by Soviet Policy

Sympathy with Finns Felt In New Aggression

Chungking, Dec. 1.

News of the Soviet invasion of Finland was given prominence in the Chinese press here today. Official quarters, however, are withholding comment on this latest development in Soviet-Finnish relations.

The Soviet invasion of Finland did not come as a surprise to Chinese circles, though the news that Soviet forces had crossed the Finnish frontier, reaching Chungking late last evening, created a sensation and caused the widest discussion.

China, being herself a victim of aggression, is cherishing the most profound sympathy for the Finns, who are fighting for their freedom and independence. At the same time, the Chinese are not in a position to express such sympathy openly in view of present Soviet assistance to China in her war of resistance against Japan.—Reuter.

Reich Warning to Argentina

Germany has warned Argentina against allowing Argentine ships to enter the war zone. She has refused to accept responsibility if the warning is ignored.—Reuter.

Finnish Communist Party Demands

Moscow, Dec. 1.

In an open letter to the people of Finland published in the "Pravda," the Finnish Communist Party demands the formation of a common front of all workers and peasants and the creation of a popular Government in Finland and the conclusion of a mutual-assistance pact between Finland and Russia. It also advocated a political and social programme inspired by Soviet methods.—Havas.

The Soviet's growth of power is particularly unpopular in German Army and Navy circles, the correspondent says. The former recall the time when the Germans and Finns fought side by side against Russia and won Finland's independence, while naval circles are worried for strategic reasons.—Reuter.

Thousands of Swedes Enrol

Germans Regret Invasion

Copenhagen, Dec. 1.

The Berlin correspondent of the "National Tidende" reported today that the friendship between Germany and Soviet Russia is growing more unpopular daily in the Reich. The man in the street sincerely favours Finland while even political quarters frequently express the hope that Finland will be allowed one day to take her revenge on Russia. Twenty years ago the Germans fought for Finland's independence against the Bolsheviks. The Berlin correspondent of the "Politiken" reports that in officers messes and clubs in the capital, toasts are drunk to Finland.—Havas.

most pessimistic predictions arrived relating the details of the Russian invasion of Finland.

Press Show Anger

The American press sensationally featured the story of Russia's invasion of Finland with screaming headlines and extras reminiscent of the first days of the European War.

Editorials and cartoons continued along the same line taken since the beginning of the Soviet-Finnish crisis, hotly criticizing Moscow and recalling the fable of the wolf's accusation of the sheep.

Conservative editorials predicted that Russia's invasion of Finland would mark the final blow to Communist sympathy in most parts of the world, particularly in the United States.—United Press.

Finnish Dollar Bonds Drop

country if Helsinki failed to accept all the demands made by the Russians.

In a broadcast to the United States last night, the Foreign Minister, M. Elias Erkko declared: "A great power with whom Finland maintained friendly relations and signed a non-aggression pact valid until 1945, attacked not only our frontier positions but also open towns, hospitals, and spread war in our country. We did nothing to threaten this power. Russia several times noted that she had nothing to fear from the Finnish side. Contrary to accusations hurled at us, we did nothing which could endanger the security of Leningrad, and notably offered to withdraw our troops to a safe distance. We proposed the mediation of a neutral country. Everything was refused. Finland did all she could to avoid a conflict. The small Finnish democracy sends her greetings to the American people and thanks them for their efforts in favour of Finland."—Havas.

India Seeks Trade With Japan

Many British Products Now Unobtainable

Tokyo, Dec. 1.

Trade with Great Britain having fallen off since the start of the European war, India was reported, according to information reaching here today, to be anxious to revise its commercial treaty with Japan.

Negotiations for the revision of the pact are now being conducted in Delhi.

Since the start of the war in Europe, it was stated, India has not been able to sell as much raw cotton to Great Britain as before and cannot buy as much textiles from Lancashire.

To cope with the situation, India has turned to Japan for textiles and as a market for its raw cotton, according to messages reaching here.—Domei.

Rome Press Reticent On Soviet Invasion

Rome, Dec. 1.

Newspapers today prominently reproduce foreign telegrams indicating the emotion felt by all Europe over Russia's invasion of Finland, but little comment is published.

A Moscow official communique announcing military operations is also reproduced. The press observes that the Kremlin, which had made no mention of a state of war yesterday, now places responsibility on the Finns, accusing them of provocations.—Reuter.

Christmas Turkeys to Be Dearer

Tinghai Authorities Start Control System

There will be only a few turkeys for Shanghailanders during the Christmas celebration and their prices will be increased considerably because of the control of their distribution effected by the authorities in Tinghai, Chekiang, states a Chinese report. Farmers in Chekiang who have been feeding turkeys have simply made a profit for others, it is stated.

In past years, turkeys were sent to Shanghai from Tinghai in large numbers a few days before Christmas for foreign consumption but since Tinghai has been occupied by the Japanese military the supply will be limited.

Quoting a Tinghai merchant, the report states that there is a trade control bureau in Tinghai, the only island district in Chekiang where turkeys are abundantly found. The bureau has been controlling exportation of native products, but now it has turned its particular attention to turkeys.

Those farmers who export turkeys to outports must first go to the bureau to have the prices of their turkeys "assessed" and necessary "fees" paid, otherwise confiscation will be in order, the report asserts.

While a weird Inca dirge beats a prelude to murder in a lonely London garden, miles away London's arch-criminal is perpetrating the greatest crime in history, the theft of the crown jewels from the Tower of London. How England's master detective frustrates both crimes is revealed in 20th Century Fox's latest presentation of the adventures of this superb criminologist, "Sherlock Holmes," now playing at the Cathay Theatre. Those who found enjoyment in Mr. Basil Rathbone's performance of Holmes in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" will thrill to his exhibition in the title role of this latest episode in the life of the inimitable Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Nigel Bruce appears once more as Dr. Watson, Holmes' able but simple colleague. Mr. George Zucco is most fiendish in his presentation of Dr. Moriarty, sworn enemy of Sherlock Holmes, who meets his death in a thrilling climax on the top of the Tower of London. Miss Ida Lupino and Mr. Alan Marshal provide the romantic interest while Mr. E. E. Clive appears in all his dignity as Inspector Bristol of Scotland Yard.

Decision was reached yesterday by Mr. Fusanosuke Kuhara, President of the Seiyukai Party, and Mr. Matajiro Koizumi, a leader of the Minseito Party, to accept the posts.

Mr. Tsuneo Kanamitsu, Minister of Overseas Affairs, acting as a representative of the Premier, Gen. Nobuyuki Abe, tendered the post to Mr. Kuhara after conferring with leaders of the Seiyukai Party.

Mr. Ryusaku Endo, Chief Cabinet Secretary, acting as another special envoy for Gen. Abe, offered Mr. Koizumi, a former Minister of Communications, the post of Cabinet Counsellor.

The Minseito Party is the majority Party in Japan, while the Seiyukai has the second largest representation in the Diet.

Baron Sadao Araki, former Minister of War and Education, or Mr. Shukei Katsuda, former Minister of Education and Finance, will be appointed Cabinet Counsellor. Informal consent has already been obtained from both of them, it was stated.—Domei.

H.M. Envoy Recalls His Advice

China Britons Still Told To Stay in Jobs; List Of Airmen Being Taken

The Briton in China can still serve his country best by staying at his job. This was revealed yesterday by Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, H. M. Ambassador to China, when he spoke to members of the Royal Air Force Association of Shanghai and their guests at a luncheon which was held in the "Dome" of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank building, headquarters of the Association. The British Ambassador, who was guest of honour, recalled his recent broadcast speech made shortly after the outbreak of war when he gave all Britons this advice, and he stated that everything that had happened since had justified what he said.

After thanking the members for the splendid welcome they had given him, the Ambassador spoke of their duty towards their country. All of them, he expected, would offer their services if they could render any service. He then referred to his recent broadcast speech in which he advised Britons not to rush home or immediately want to get into the trenches, but to stick in the job in which they were employed and to wait until their services were asked for.

"I have no reason to recall what I said," he continued, "and I remember how much it cost me in the last war to submit to sitting quiet for a time. Everything that has happened since has justified what I said. We have had, since I made that broadcast, instructions from His Majesty's Government to Consular offices in this country asking them to make lists of local people who are interested in the air."

"A Queer War"

The Ambassador then read the text of the instructions to the assembly as follows: "Consular offices have instruction to take particulars of local applicants possessing suitable qualifications, such as pilots, wireless officers, etc. The names will be kept on the register." He continued, "That is known to most of you and from the looks of most of you I gather that most of you consider yourselves likely candidates. I'm sorry I cannot say anything more."

"It is a queer war and as the months go by we see in it a tendency to fight it out more in the air than anywhere else," Sir Archibald continued. "And so when the time comes to make an appeal there is no doubt that this appeal will be addressed to you as airmen. I was a foot soldier and I don't think there is much chance of my being asked to walk in this war. You are airmen and on that you are to be congratulated." Sir Archibald concluded his speech to the rousing strains of that well-known ditty "We're here because we're here because...." lustily sung by the members and guests.

Clear Consciences

In welcoming the Ambassador, Sir Victor Sassoon, President of the Association, in a witty speech said that it had occurred to him that it would be interesting to persuade Sir Archibald to state if there had been anything new justifying the members of the Association offering their valuable services in the war. "There is no doubt," he went on amid laughter, "that the war cannot be brought to a successful conclusion until we are used in the capacity in which we consider we should be used."

On the other hand, Sir Victor continued, they were ready to go out when they were wanted but while they were not wanted there was no reason why they should go about in sackcloth and ashes, refusing to enjoy themselves. They should not feel miserable about it when they did not feel miserable at all. In conclusion, he referred to the fact that the authorities here had been asked to make lists of applicants for service. Even though they were a long way away from the war they had not been absolutely forgotten and the authorities realized that they were ready to go out when they were wanted. Their consciences, therefore, could be clear in that respect.

The great event of the past week in Shanghai was undoubtedly the opening of the winter season by Le Ballet Russe at the Lyceum Theatre on Thursday evening. Beauty came to life in this drab city with the rise of the curtain then, and an overflowing audience, by its applause, testified to the need for the resumption of this talented company's activities. There could have been no better choice than "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," famous novel by Victor Hugo, for an opening production. Transformed into a ballet in three acts and four scenes, with music by Drigo and Wormfer, this production was, indeed, a lavish spectacle, a spectacle in which grace and beauty were ever present. It was also a spectacle in which Miss Audrey King—a name that is synonomous with success in Shanghai—was present. Year by year this graceful dancer, who has earned for herself an exalted position in local choreographic circles in which, there is little doubt, talent abounds aplenty, adds further laurels to her already long list of honours gained in earlier productions. On Thursday evening she was perfect. Like a queen she held the large audience spellbound by her statuesque grace and brilliant artistry that one could not be blamed for anticipating her entry into scenes from which she was absent. This was no reflection on the rest of the performers, all of whom were in excellent form. To Miss Audrey King, however, one should be grateful. Such beauty in dance as displayed by her is rarely seen. Mr. Shevlugin was present, too. After a rather stiff opening he gradually thawed out a little as the spectacle progressed but that stiffness seemed to be ever-present. Perhaps further productions will see it banished? Miss Baranova was, as usual, her own graceful self and her performance left nothing to be desired. Mr. Sokolsky was another great success of the evening in the role of Claude Frollo and for him there was plenty of applause. As the hunchback, Quasimodo, Mr. Kniazeff, was in good form and so were the rest of the cast including the Misses Larskaya, Nikitina and Malinina, Messrs. Svetlanov and Eliroff and Miss Galich. Three little cupids in the persons of Joy Blackwood, Roth and Merkoulova stole the hearts of the audience at each appearance and the thunderous applause which they received was fully deserved. The scenery was excellent, the music and costumes just as good and the whole show augured well for the coming season of ballet performances. The producer was Mr. N. Sokolsky, the conductor, Maestro A. Sloutsky, the scenery was the work of Mr. M. Domracheff, and Mrs. E. Routkovskaya was responsible for the excellent costumes. The show will be repeated tonight, tomorrow afternoon and evening.—R.S.

The League, instead, will launch a collection campaign for gifts to Japanese officers and men at the front from December 25 to December 28.

Four Gunmen Take Boy from Home

Stolen Hire-Car Used by Kidnappers in "Outside" Territory in Daylight

Dressing and undressing a hire-car chauffeur was part of a kidnapping plot successfully engineered in broad daylight yesterday in the western "outside roads" area. A gang of four Chinese, all armed with pistols, committed the bold crime and are now presumably hiding with their victim somewhere in the badlands.

The band started operations at 11 o'clock yesterday morning when they kidnapped the driver in a lane off Jessfield Road and stripped him of his uniform. One of the gangsters put on the chauffeur's clothes and seated himself at the wheel. The real driver was placed in the back of the car and told to keep quiet.

Large Garage Car

The hire-car, which belongs to one of the large garages here, was then driven to Brenan Road and into a lane off that thoroughfare. Two of the gang left the vehicle and walked farther into the lane. After a few minutes they returned with a Chinese boy, about 8 years old. They put the child in the back of the car and drove westwards along Brenan Road. At a deserted point well within the badlands they halted, removed the boy from the car and returned the uniform to the chauffeur. Then they vanished with their victim. The driver was not harmed. After dressing himself he returned to his garage.

Robbers Abduct Victim

Another abduction into the western district was carried out on Thursday evening by robbers. Three men kidnapped a Chinese at pistol point in Mandalay Road, near Chungking Road, at 6.15 o'clock. They forced their victim to enter a motor-car and then drove him via Great Western Road to Fah Hwa Village, one of the notorious places in the badlands. There they robbed him of about $500, then released him. No shots were fired.

Bank Note Forger Suspects Held

Trap by Police Results in Two Arrests

Counterfeit bank notes purporting to be issued by the Bank of China and very much like genuine ones have been printed and distributed in Shanghai, it was revealed yesterday in the First Special District Court when two forger suspects, in whose possession many fake notes were found, were brought before the tribunal by the Wayside police for trial. Judgment was reserved pending further investigations during which the police wish to discover the printing plant.

Wang Ching-lin, one of the accused, was recently trapped by an assistant of a detective who posed as a customer of fake notes. After negotiations, it was alleged, Wang was to give him $83 in counterfeit notes near the Sinza Bridge which he did. As soon as the fake notes were turned over in exchange for genuine ones amounting to a smaller sum, the officers rushed up and arrested him.

Through Wang's alleged confession, the police raided the home of the second accused, Sheng Ah-kwang, near Rue Conty, and arrested him. At the police station, the first accused was alleged to have told the officers that he had bought the fake notes from Sheng at a price of $12 in genuine notes for $100 counterfeit notes.

Both were charged yesterday with counterfeiting and some of the seized fake notes were exhibited in court. Both accused did not reveal the location of the plant for printing such notes.

Shanghai Stocks

Yesterday's Business

Yesterday's market developed irregularity with easiness prevailing. This was due to profit-taking in some directions, induced by the nearness of the end of the settlement causing a certain amount of liquidation. It will be noted that there were buyers for all the more favoured shares at the close.

Interest was shown in Telephones which were done as high as 23½.

Rubbers were dealt in fairly generally but little improvement could be noted in prices. Samagagas, Kroewoeks, Langkats and Java Consols were the most favoured.

Thursday's Closing Quotations

New York, Nov. 30.

The cotton market early advanced on trade and speculative buying, impressively higher Liverpool and Bombay cables and shorts covering. Later, prices further appreciated on foreign buying, but profit taking sales reduced gains. Finally, the market again rallied on bulls support and renewed covering, especially of October option, and closed steady, with quotations ranging from 4 to 16 points up.

Prices in the rubber market early declined on overnight selling orders, liquidation and lower cables, but later rallied on sustained speculative support and trade and foreign buying. At the close, quotations ranged from unchanged to 10 points up.

After a steady opening, wheat prices in Chicago today advanced on a broader commission house demand, trade and foreign buying and the firmness of Winnipeg advices. At the final bell, gains of 1 to 1⅜ cents. were recorded.

New York Stocks

Thursday's Closing Quotations

New York, Nov. 30.

Stock prices on Wall Street today declined from fractions to 1 point. The market was erratic but became more quiet after a period of initial activity.

Fears that Russo-Finnish developments might bring about world-wide complications helped touch-off some stop-loss orders, but traders were generally reluctant to dump their holdings overboard, owing to more optimistic business news. Scandivian hands moved down sharply.

Steels, aircrafts and chemicals bore the brunt of the pressure, while motors were sold off, despite bright production prospects. Rails eased as car loadings dropped more than seasonally.

Meanwhile, there is talk of accelerated foreign selling. Sentiment is unsettled.

However, the prediction of Mr. Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, that Christmas wholesale and retail sales would hit a ten-year high is claiming some attention.

The turnover today amounted to 880,000 shares.—Reuter.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Stock prices declined today with losses exceeding two points, with the Dow-Jones Industrials Average reaching a new low since September 2.

The volume of trading increased, with the level of 1,000,000 shares being reached for the first time in several weeks. A few issues gained, such as International Business Machine, which advanced two points, Johns Manville one point, while Bendix Aviation, Consolidated Edison, Crucible Steel and Electric Boat gained fractionally. Some other issues lost widely. Experts ascribed the decline to technical factors. Business news was mixed, although mostly favourable. Car loadings recorded a decline, which was as expected.

London Stocks

Thursday's Closing Quotations

London, Nov. 30.

Finnish developments were responsible for the early marking down of prices on the London Stock Exchanges today, but no selling appeared and the market generally recovered partially prior to the close of trading.

Finnish bonds, however, dropped about ten points, but the Finnish mark remained comparatively steady, showing a decline of only five points from 200 to 205 to the pound sterling.—Reuter.

Due at Future Dates

All vessels are listed under their terminal port. The first date is that of the ship's departure from that port, and the second is the date she is due to arrive in Shanghai Where a ship's name is duplicated it indicates the port of call last visited.

On account of the present international situation there is considerable interference with movements of ships, especially those from Europe. In cases where it is definitely known that the vessel is not running to schedule the Shanghai arrival date is omitted.

Russia May Have Scandinavia By Next Spring

London Fears Nazi Pressure on Sweden, Norway; Soviet Action in Balkans or Against Turkey

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Dec. 1.

THE prophesy that by next spring Soviet Russia would have possession of the whole of Scandinavia, was made in a speech here by Captain von Rintelen, former intelligence officer of the Imperial German Naval Staff, now an exile from the Nazi regime. He was at a loss, he added, to understand why the Finns put up resistance against something which could not be resisted. There were about half a million troops concentrated along the northern frontiers to the east of Finland, and by next spring the Soviet Union would possess the Scandinavian countries, as none of them was tied by an alliance to any of the great Powers.

Unanimous condemnation of Soviet Russia's action in Finland is voiced by newspapers here this morning under such headings as: "The Murder of Finland," and "Freedom's Latest Martyr."

In an editorial, "The Times" says: "The world is given yet another demonstration that in the eyes of despotism of Central Europe, a small nation possesses no rights save those it can assert by the force of its own arms or those of its friends. The friends of Finland at this moment of indefensible outrage must include all free nations of the world, but geography has set this gallant people in a recess of the Baltic, where they are not approachable directly by any great Power, except two representatives of brute force. It seems incredible that 180,000,000 Soviet subjects can be induced to believe that their rulers are seriously alarmed at the danger to Leningrad of having a nation of 3,500,000 persons across the frontier."

The "Daily Telegraph" declares that the Prime Minister's account in the House of Commons yesterday was studiously restrained, but "it could not disguise his awareness of the full significance of the event."

Soviets Pupils of Nazis

"Mr. Chamberlain," the paper continues, "emphasized the Government's opinion that the question at issue was not such as to justify warlike measures. A similar opinion, it will be remembered, was passed when Nazi forces over-ran Czechoslovakia and afterwards, Poland. It was equally well-founded and equally unavailing. Evidently the world is face to face today with a faithful imitation of the Nazi model. Soviet Ministers have proved apt pupils in applying the policy of 'smash and grab'."

The "Daily Herald" says: "Now, finally, M. Stalin's Russia sacrifices all claim to affectation of respect of the working class movement. Whatever the motive, there can be no defence for it which would convince any socialists. The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is dead. M. Stalin's imperialist Russia has taken its place."

The "News-Chronicle" states: "The excuses put forward to justify this crime will not bear a moment's scrutiny. Never in the history of aggression, has a small nation offered less justification for a brutal assault than Finland."—Reuter.

Balkans Coming Next?

London, Nov. 30.

The hammer and sickle of Soviet Russia now is hanging over the Balkans for, after the Finnish campaign, the Red Army may seek to extend Soviet influence in the Black Sea region at Rumania's expense, British political quarters asserted this evening. The U.S.S.R. today is ensuring her full security on the Baltic front and then will turn to the south-east and the rich Rumanian province of Bessarabia, which was Russian before the Great War.

M. Josef Stalin may also threaten Turkey in the Caucasus, beyond which Italy said she would not tolerate Soviet advances. Developments in the Black Sea region could not fail to affect the signatories of the Anglo-French-Turkish mutual aid pact, political circles here added, and they emphasized that parleys taking place in London today tend to strengthen the tripartite alliance.

Nazi Influence in Sweden, Norway

Behind the screen of open Soviet military action against Finland, British political quarters discerned deeper currents of political intrigue with Germany whereby the U.S.S.R. is given a free hand in Finland, while the Reich is to be given her way with Sweden and Norway.

Nazi leaders would want to show their followers that friendship with the Russians brought some tangible advantages to the Reich. Successful Nazi aggression in the long peninsulas of Norway and Sweden, British quarters declared, would give the Reich access to strategic and economic gains of some value. Germany would control Swedish iron ore, both countries' lumber resources, and free passage through Narvick for German imports.

Narvick is in northern Norway, close to the Swedish frontier, on a through railway linking the Baltic to the arctic waters of the north Atlantic near the Lofoten Islands. By use of this railway, Germany might be able to import and export goods via the cold northern waters of the Atlantic, through the fringes of the British blockade.

Of further military value would be Scandinavian bases as jumping boards for an eventual German attack on the British Isles. Red Army forces in the northern Petsamo regions of Finland might aid the Nazi troops in their Scandinavian adventure, British quarters concluded, and could serve to isolate Norway and even Sweden.—Havas.

French Press Attacks Soviet

Paris, Dec. 1.

The French press is unanimous in its condemnation of the invasion of Finland by Soviet Russia. The action is considered as "one more shameful act to add to all the others."—Reuter.

American Comment

New York, Dec. 1.

"It is doubtful if the totalitarian states could have done anything better calculated to clarify their policy than the invasion of Finland," declares the "Herald-Tribune" in a leading article today. "The forces of evil unleashed in the world by the Soviet-German alliance," the paper adds, "form a threat, not only to democratic Europe, but to the whole civilized world."

The "New York Times" says that "the bombs that rained on Finnish workers and peasants have exploded a mighty illusion."—Reuter.

Chinese Transport Said Crippled

Japanese Claim Capture Of Nanning Inflicts Severe Blow

Sinyang, Dec. 1.

Chinese transportation into the interior suffered a serious setback when Japanese forces captured Nanning, observers acquainted with the "lie of the land" declared today.

Until the Japanese occupation of Nanning, it was pointed out, the Chungking Government had three transport routes open between the interior and seaports: the Burma-Yunnan route; the French Indo-China-Yunnan route over the Yunnan Railway; and the French Indo-China-Kwangsi route.

The Kwangsi route geographically was the most advantageous, it was stated, and more goods were carried over this route than either of the other two.

The monthly average of commodities transported over the Kwangsi route totalled about 12,000 tons, compared with about 10,000 over the Burma route and about 8,000 over the Yunnan railway.

Trucks, railway materials, bridge construction materials, arms and ammunitions constituted most of the imports.

Three Routes Possible

Before the fall of Nanning, any one of three routes could be taken: From Langson on the eastern border of French Indo-China to Nanning by highway via Chennankwan; from Tahtke, a border town north-east of Langson, to Lungchow, further along the Left River toward Nanning, and from Kaobang, north-east of Tahtke, to Tsingsi, and along the route river towards Nanning.

Since the Kwangsi routes have been completely cut off, about 25 agents of the South-west Transportation Company were reported to be making efforts to increase the capacity of the Yunnan Railway. This, however, was expected to be a difficult matter. The railway last month was blocked because of a landslide caused by rainfall, and resulted in the suspension of this means of transportation, according to reports.—Domei.

Community Church Concert

Entrance of Pro Arte into Shanghai Musical Field

Concert overture ..... Hollins
Trio Elégiaque ..... Rachmaninoff
"Meditation" ..... Bach-Gounod
Piano quartette ..... Brahms

It is extremely gratifying to note the entrance of the Pro Arte Chamber Music Association into the musical life of Shanghai. This group of musicians is deserving of all the support that enthusiasts for their art can give them for the task before them is a somewhat awesome one. There is no class of musical entertainment more difficult to establish in public favour than the chamber music concert of high quality. Thursday evening's performance at the Community Church, however, augurs well for the future of the Pro Arte combination. The standard of performance at once commends them to the serious listener and if the programme did lean towards the popular that is, after all, a necessary tendency at the start.

The concert was given with the collaboration of Mr. R. V. Dent, the honorary organist of the Community Church, who opened the programme with one of the two concert overtures by Alfred Hollins, a brilliant and vigorous composition by a composer who has had a remarkably successful career both as a pianist and an organist in spite of the handicap of total blindness from birth.

The Rachmaninoff trio and the Brahms quartette are both early works, the former composed at the age of 20 in memory of Tchaikowsky. The quartette is of special interest because it is one of the earliest of Brahms' works demonstrating (in its finale) the attraction towards Hungarian music which so greatly influenced his later output. "Meditation" turned out to be the well-known "Ave Maria" in an unusual and striking combination of instruments.

The members of the Pro Arte Association who played at this very successful concert were:

Mme. Nadine de Leuchtemberg-Beauharnais ..... piano
Prof. M. Livshitz ..... violin
Prof. J. Podushka ..... viola
Prof. I. Shevtzoff ..... cello

Eleven Foreigners Still In Nanning

Eleven third-party nationals, comprising two Americans, two Britons, and seven Frenchmen, were remaining in Nanning, important southern Kwansi city, when it was occupied by Japanese forces on November 24, the "Shanghai Mainichi" reported here yesterday.

They were assured the protection of their lives and property by a Japanese staff officer who visited them on Wednesday under express orders of Lieut.-Gen. Rikichiki Ando, commander-in-chief of the Japanese Expeditionary Force to South China, according to the daily.

M. Daladier Gets Plenary Powers

Chamber Votes 316 to 172 Over Confidence Motion by Premier

Paris, Nov. 30.

With a view to the swift unified prosecution of the war, the Premier, M. Edouard Daladier, today asked and was granted full powers for the duration of the war when the Chamber of Deputies voted confidence in him by 309 to 189 ballots.

One hundred and fifty-one Socialists voted against the measure. Sixty-five Deputies did not vote, while 47 former Communists were not allowed to cast their ballot.

The confidence vote was taken when the Chamber rejected a counter-proposal to the Government's motion demanding full powers. The final vote grants M. Daladier the right to enforce all important war decisions by decree, speedily and smoothly.

The Military Affairs Committee of the Chamber earlier in the day adopted the project proposed by the Government while the Finance Committee tabled the counter motion which, however, did not oppose the grant of full powers to the Government, but requested simply that all decrees should be ratified by the Chamber within a month after issue.

Contending that by the terms of this project he would be compelled to convene the Chamber for extraordinary sessions on several occasions, the Premier successfully opposed it. He pointed out that the Government motion itself provides for Parliamentary ratification of decrees within a month if the Chamber is in session. His project, he emphasized, escaped the pitfall of the Finance Committee's motion by providing that if no session were held, ratification could wait.

Reds Lose Immunity

The Chamber of Deputies yesterday afternoon approved, by a vote of raised hands, a motion to cancel the immunity of eleven former Communist Deputies who recently participated in a new Workers' and Peasants' Party. Six of the eleven escaped and sought refuge from the authorities when the Communist party was outlawed upon the outbreak of war. The six included Florimond Bonte, who was arrested yesterday morning after creating an incident in the Chamber; Jean Monmousseau, Gabriel Peri and Arthur Ramette.

Communist deputies, although their party legally ceased to exist, nevertheless enjoyed immunity as long as the Chamber was in session and their old mandates were not invalidated by the Chamber. Now all are open to arrest.—Havas.

Col. Fegan Honoured By S.M.P. Officers

Major Bourne Presents Token of Esteem

Officers of the Shanghai Municipal Police entertained Col. Joseph C. Fegan, departing commander of the United States Fourth Marines, in the Police Club yesterday evening and presented him with a paper knife contained in an inscribed miniature baton as a souvenir. In response to the speech of presentation made by Major K. M. Bourne, Commissioner, Colonel Fegan pointed to the "admirable manner" in which the Settlement Police were dealing with towering difficulties and to the excellent relations existing between the Police and the American Marines.

Colonel Fegan was accompanied by Lt.-Col. C. I. Murray, Lt.-Col. F. E. Stack, Major H. N. Stent, and First Ltd. D. C. Hart. The Police officers who attended were Capt. H. M. Smyth, Mr. C. H. Samson, Assistant Commissioners. The Municipal Jail was represented by the Governor, Mr. W. C. Grant.

Colonel Fegan is due to leave Shanghai for the United States in the ss. President Taft next Tuesday.

Japanese Offer to Ship Chinese Seamen Home

Will Not Molest Former Crews of German Ships

Buenos Aires, Dec. 1.

The Japanese Consulate here told the press last night that they had offered to repatriate aboard Japanese ships 108 Chinese sailors who had refused to continue their voyage on German steamers.

The Consulate promised that the Chinese would not be molested, explaining that the Japanese campaign in China is directed against the Government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and not against the Chinese people. Therefore, the Consulate declared, there was no reason for retaliation against the Chinese seamen.

The final decision rested with the Government whether to repatriate the Chinese aboard a Japanese vessel which is sailing December 2, or permit them to remain here pending the sailing of a neutral vessel to a Chinese port.—United Press.

Coolie Charged with Snatching Wallet

A rickshaw coolie named Liu Venling appeared in the First Special District Court yesterday charged with snatching a wallet containing $80 from the Third Class Seaman S. Coulson of the U.S.S. Augusta which has left for Manila. Judgement was reserved. The coolie confessed to the crime explaining also that not only he but also other pullers nearby who saw him stealing the wallet obtained a share of the booty.

The crime was committed on November 21 when the sailor was travelling in Liu's vehicle at the intersection of Bubbling Well and Chengtu Road. The seafarer appeared a little inebriated then and when he showed his fat wallet the coolie snatched it and escaped so hurriedly that he even did not take the trouble of pulling his rickshaw away. Te sailor had the presence of mind to take the vehicle to the police station which fact enabled the officers to locate Liu later.
